PORTER FAMILIES.

Nearly all the families bearing the name of Porter, in the United States, can trace their origin to a very few imigrant ancestors.

RICHARD PORTER,

Settled in Weymouth, Mass., in 1635. He was my ancestor; and a few years since, although not especially fitted for such a work by education or occupation, I began a Genealogy of his descendants. It has been a work demanding patience and persistence, but it has been a pleasure. The very many pleasant letters received from members of the family, in nearly every state and territory in the union, containing information and encouragement, I would here gratefully reme[illegible]. I give in this little book the result, not that it is perfe[illegible]mplete, but it is what I have.

JOHN PORTER.

Of Hingham, and Salem, was at Hingham in 1635—not more than three miles distant from Richard Porter, at Weymouth. I believe they were brothers, but have no positive proof of the fact.

In the course of my researches, I have accumulated much information relating to the earlier generations of this highly respectable family; with some accounts of later generations. I have concluded to print what I have, hoping that it may be of son compile benefit, by the way of assistance towards a more is a plete Genealogy of this family, and of interest until that accomplished.

s JOHN PORTER, of Windsor, Conn., settled there, 1638, and aid to have been previously at Dorchester, Mass. Hon.
Samuel W. Porter, of Rochester, New York, Henry Porter
Andrews, of New York City, and Rev. Edward C. Porter, of Racine, Wis., have given much time and research to a Genealogy of this family, the last named gentleman having prosecuted his work in England.

ROBERT and THOMAS PORTER, brothers, were of the eighty-four proprietors of Farmington, Conn., in 1640. The first named was ancestor of President Noah Porter, of Yale College.

DANIEL PORTER, surgeon, of Farmington, Conn., before 1653, said by one authority to have been a brother of Robert and Thomas, of that town.

ABEL PORTER, of Boston, Mass., admitted to the church there Jan. 23, 1641.

JOHN PORTER, of Roxbury, freeman, Nov. 5, 1633, removed to Boston, where in March, 1636, he was appointed by court a referee in a case John Burr vs. Mr. Dummer. He was a follower of Rev. John Wheelwright and Ann Hutchinson, in their "seditious doctrines," and (with others,) was warned before the 30th of November, 1637, to deliver up his guns, pistols, powder, shot and match, at Mr. Cane's house in Boston, there to be kept till further orders by the court. "March 12, 1638, John Porter and others * * * having license to depart, summons is to go out for them to appear (if they are not gone before,) at the next court, the third month, to answer such things as shall be objected." Judge Savage, in his Genealogical Dictionary of New England, says that "he removed to Rhode Island, signed their compact in 1638; was an assistant in 1641, and after for some years. Lived in Portsmouth, R. I., in 1655, and at Wickford, R. I., 1674. Hazard II, 612." It has been by some thought that this man was the same as John, of Hingham and Salem, but I do not see how such can be the case. There are some other families who have come into the country since 1800, from England, Ireland, and the British Provinces.

JOSEPH W. PORTER.

Burlington, Maine, 1878.

NOTE—Where no state is named in connection with towns, Massachusetts is the state, except in cases of well known cities.

GENEALOGY.

RICHARD PORTER,

Settled in Weymouth, Mass., in 1635. In the New England Historical and Genealogical Register, Vol. 25, page 13, is a "list of passengers at Weymouth, England, March 30, 1635, bound for New England," in which is the name of Richard Porter. In this list, also, are the names of other men, who settled at Weymouth, some of whose descendants of the same names continue there until this day. Rev. Joseph Hull, minister; Massachiel Barnard, of Badcomb, in the county of Somerset; John Whitmarsh, William Reed, of Badcomb; Zechary Bicknell, Henry Kingman, Thomas Holbrook, Robert Lovell and others.

"July 8, 1635, the General Court granted leave to Mr. Hull, a minister, and twenty-one families, to sit down at Wessaguscus."

September 2d, ~~1635~~, the General Court changed the name of Wessaguscus to Weymouth, so named, no doubt, for Weymouth, England. During the late war, the selectmen had occasion to look up the incorporation of the town, and found no other authority to act as a town, than this.

For two hundred and forty-three years, Weymouth has been the only ancient town in Massachusetts, with possibly one exception, which has preserved its original boundaries. Nothing has been added, nothing taken away. Long may the old town continue before it is cut up into insignificance.

The town records of Weymouth, prior to 1648, are very meagre. In that year and in 1654, 1661, 1663, and 1668, grants of land were made to Richard Porter. For many years he was continually in office as selectman, constable, and upon committees; he was a member of the original church, and the name of "brother Richard Porter" often occurs on the old records. He lived not far from where the meeting house of the North Parish, in Weymouth, now stands; probably between there and the old burial ground. In 1651 a road was laid out between Richard Porter's meadow and Stephen French's land. In 1663 the town voted "that the flats upon the back river shall be let out for town's use for the ensuing year, for the thatching of houses, and this to be done by the selectmen. By flats we understand all these flats on this side of river, begining at Snooke's Marsh until you come to the upper end of Richard Porter's marsh." In 1673 Abiah Whitman and Thomas Hunt, were appointed fence viewers for "middle of the town so far as the brook that runs by Richard Porter's house." In 1661 brother Richard Porter, John Rane, John Bicknell, Stephen French, and John Porter, chosen committee to repair meeting house. "Bro. Bicknell, for making the meeting house tite, 3 pounds." The name of his wife was probably Ruth, and he was probably married after arriving in this country. On Boston records is the following birth: "Ruth, daughter of Richard Porter, born at Weymouth, Oct. 3, 1639." He died between Dec. 25, 1688, the date of his will, and March 6, 1689, the date of the inventory of his estate. I give a copy of his will which I found in the Suffolk Probate office, unrecorded.

I, Richard Porter, of Weymouth, in New England, being apprehensive of my near approaching departure out of this world, and being through the mercy of God of a short memory and disposing mind; trusting in the mercy of God through ye Lord Jesus Christ for Etternall Life: Do make this my last will and testament as folowth:

Item: I do give and bequeath unto my grandchild, Thomas Porter, the only sone of my sone Thomas Porter, deceased, my now dwelling house and barn and orchard, the swampy meadow, and ye land adjoining ffrom ye swampy land of James Lovelll, and Joseph Dyer, downward along by ye country highway, so far as the gate by which wee did turne out of the highway into ye feild comonly called ye middle gate, and from that gate crose ye feild upon a streight line into ye land now in ye ocupation of John Blanchett (Blanchard.)

Also, I give unto my said grandchild the one full halfe of my lott of land being in the second devision of common lott, the divission to be made when ye said Thomas shall come to ye age of twenty years; always provided, and it is my will, that if ye said Thomas shall dye before he come to ye age of twenty years, that then the foresaid estate shall be and remaine so, to my grandchild Ruth Richards, and the heirs borne of her body, if any be then living, if not then to return to my sone John, to him and his heirs: my will is that ye said Thomas Porter shall have the income of his part of ye estate immediately after my decease. I give and bequath unto my Grandchild, Samuel Bayley, that my two Acres of Land on King Oak Hill. Also I give and bequath unto my daughter, Mary Bicknell, ten pounds of my estate to be paid by my Executors after my decease. All the rest of my estate not before given by this my will, I give and bequeath to my sone, John Porter, whom I do make, constitute, and appoint my sole executor to this my last will and testament, and I do desire and appoint my loving ffriends, James Lovell, sen'r, and Thomas Reed, as overseers to this my last will and testament, in all respects that it may be fulfiled; and I do hereby make void and null all other former wills by me made and declared, and do declare and publish this to be my last will and testament. In witness thereof I have hereunto sett my hand and seal, the five & twentieth day of December, in ye year of ye Lord one thousand six hundred eighty and eight, in ye fourth year of his Majesty's reign James the Second, by ye grace of God, King of England, and defender of ye faith.

SECOND GENERATION.

Sergeant John[2] Porter of Richard[1] Porter. Lived in Weymouth, with the possible exception of a few years in Bridgewater, of which I am doubtful. He was one of the most enterprising men of his time. He had many land grants in Weymouth. He was also a large purchaser of lands in ancient Bridgewater, in 1686, 1687, 1693, 1694, 1696 and in 1699. In Bridgewater, Feb. 13, 1686, at a meeting of purchasers of Bridgewater lands, "they did agree to give to Rev. Mr. Keith, so many as were willing, out of their thirty acre wood lots as followeth, two acres each;" this agreement was signed by John Porter. About the same time he with others agreed to give land for a common in Bridgewater "for good of all." In 1693 he built the first saw mill in what is now South Abington at "Little Comfort." In 1696 he sold half of this mill to Joseph Josselyn. In 1680 he and John Holbrook of Weymouth took a mortgage of a brewery in Boston, of Robert Cox, which stood not far from the site of the present postoffice. In 1705 he and his wife sold Grape Island, in Weymouth; he was a useful, honored citizen, holding all the various town offices at different times; committee to run town lines several times. One remarkable fact about him is, that I cannot find that he was ever made a freeman by the General Court—without which in those times, no man could hold public office, it was said. He married Deliverance, daughter of Nicholas, and Martha (Shaw) Byram, Feb. 9, 1660. He died in Weymouth, Aug. 7, 1717; his widow died Sept. 30, 1720.

I give a copy of his will from Suffolk Probate Records:

In the Name of God, Amen: This Eight day of Febuary, Annoqe Domini One thousand Seven hundred and * * Fifteen or Sixteen, I, John Porter, of Weymouth, in the County of Suffolk, in New England, Yeoman, being aged but of perfect memory and Disposing mind, Do make this my last Will and Testament in manner and form following:—First and Principally I commit my Soul to God that gave it, hopeing for Salvation through the alone merits of Jesus Christ my Redeemer, and my Body to the Earth to be burried in such desent manner as to my Executrix hereafter named shall be thought meet. And as touching my worldly Estate, my mind and Will is the same shall be Imployed and bestowed as in and by this my Will is Expressed. Imprimis, I Will that my just Debts and Funeral charges shall be well and truly paid in Convenient time after my Decease by my Executrix hereafter named.

Samuel[3] Porter, of John[2] Porter. Town officer in Weymouth, 1705. Probably removed to Abington about that time; shoemaker and schoolmaster. Jan. 30, 1712, he "bought of Daniel Axtell, tanner, his farm in Abington, consisting of a dwelling house and half of the Grant to the Briggs". Assessor of Abington 1716, selectman 1714, and three years after. In 1724 selectmen employed him to keep school; March, 1727, they were directed to "draw six pounds out of the treasury, and pay Mr. Samuel Porter, deceased, his keeping school." He was one of the original members of the church in Abington. He married Mary, daughter of Jacob[2] and Abigail (Dyer) Nash, of Weymouth, about 1698. He died in Abington, Aug. 31, 1725.

I give below a copy of his will from Plymouth Co. Records.

"In the Name of God Amen.—I, Samuel Porter, of Abington in ye County of Plymouth in New England, Sen'r, being in perfect mind & memory (Blessed be God,) do on this twenty-fourth day of August Anno Domni one thousand seven hundred twenty & five, and in ye twelfth year of ye Reign of our sovereign Lord George, King of England, &c., make & ordain this my last Will and Testament, and after having committed my soul to God who gave it & my body to ye dust to be decently buried at ye discretion of my Executors hereafter herein mentioned, in a full and certain hope of a future ressurrection.

And as for my worldly estate I dispose of in manner & form as followeth (viz.)

First, I give to my beloved wife Mary Porter, all my household goods & ye income of my third part of all my Real Estate during her life.

ITEM.—I give to my son Samuel Porter, two acres of land where his house stands, beginning at ye Road six rods northerly from his house and running South-west & then turning a corner South East & running to the place first mentioned and so encompassing to him his heirs & assign forever.

ITEM.—I give to my son Samuel Porter & my son Jacob Porter all ye rest of my home living or farm on both sides of ye Road with my house & barn & all my right in ye undivided land in Bridgewater & that tract of land which was laid out to me in Bridgewater by a Committee in ye year one thousand seven hundred & twenty four, & my right in ye Saw mill in Abington with all my stock of Cattle & Horses, sheep & swine & all my personal Estate not yet disposed of. I will give all these to them their heirs & assigns forever; and it is to be equally divided between two.

ITEM 4.—My will further is that my cow & ye half of a Bull & 4 swine which I determined to kill shall be for the support of my family, with the corn which I raise this year both English and Indian.

ITEM 5.—I give to my son David & my son John my hundred acres of Land in ye old Men's shares which I had of my father in law Lieut. Jacob Nash, to be equally divided between them their heirs & assigns forever.

ITEM 6.—My will further is that my son Samuel Porter & my Son Jacob Porter pay to my daughter Mary Porter fifty Pounds in money or Bills of Credit within three months after my decease, and also that my two sons Samuel & Jacob shall pay to my daughter Hannah fifty Pounds in money or Bills of Credit when she shall arrive to the age of Eighteen years; this is to my two daughters their heirs & assigns forever.

ITEM 7.—My will is that my son David Porter & John Porter shall pay fifty Pounds money or Bills of Credit to my daughter Abigail when she shall arrive to ye age of Eighteen years to her heirs & assigns forever. And I nominate and appoint my son Samuel Porter & my son Jacob Porter to be my Executors on my Estate to prove my will and settle my Estate & to pay my funeral charges & all my just debts & receive all my just dues, and I do hereby exclude all other wills & declare this to be my last will & Testament, and I have hereunto set my hand & Seal ye day & year above mentioned.

Rev. John[4] Porter, of Samuel[3] Porter, b. Abington, Feb. 2, 1716. Grad. Har. College, 1736; ordained minister at North Bridgewater, (now Brockton) Mass., Oct. 15, 1740. He was a man of more than average ability, of good education and acquirements, and as a preacher and writer had a good reputation. He was much engaged in controversy—not that he loved it, but he thought it a necessity of the times. He preached the doctrines of the gospel from his standpoint with ability and success. His reputation for prudence, integrity and wisdom was great, causing him to be much sought for to heal difficulties and promote harmony in neighboring churches. He possessed the affection and respect of his own people to a remarkable degree. The periodical visits of himself and wife to his parishioners were days of pleasure and rejoicing to young and old. Several of his sermons were printed, among them one, "a sermon preached at Freetown, Dec. 2, 1747, at the ordination of the Reverend Mr. Silas Brett," a copy of which I have—and in these enlightened days it will be considered a remarkable sermon. Mr. Porter continued to preach until Sept. 1, 1800, when warned by increasing age and infirmities, he asked for a colleague. Rev. Thomas Crafts, his son-in-law, preached for a while, and soon after Rev. Asa Meech, from Conn., was invited to become colleague pastor, which call he accepted, and was ordained Oct. 15, 1800. Mr. Porter continued to perform pastoral labor, preaching occasionally, till his decease."

The following, copied from Moses Carey's Genealogy of Families in North Bridgewater, will be of interest:

"In the year 1769, when the disputes between England and America had begun, and the importation of foreign goods was stopped, it became customary for people to manufacture their own clothing, and in many places the young ladies had spinning matches, at their minister's, for the benefit of their families.

On the 15th of August, 1769, at two o'clock P. M., ninety-seven young ladies met at the house of their pastor, the Rev. John Porter, and generously gave his lady, for the use of her family, three thousand three hundred and twenty-two knots of linen, tow, cotton and woolen yarn, which they had spun for that purpose! At three o'clock, something of American produce only was set before them for their refreshment, which was more agreeable to them than any foreign dainties, considering the situation of the country at that time. At four o'clock the ladies walked in procession to the meeting-house, where a discourse was delivered by their pastor, from Acts ix. 36;—"This woman was full of good works"; in which piety, industry, frugality, and benev - lence, were recommended and encouraged. The closing prayer being made, the following lines, composed by their pastor, were sung:

Ye rubies bright, ye orient pearls,—
  How coveted by men!—
And yet, the virtuous woman's price
  Excells the precious gem.

How kind and generous her heart!—
  How diligent her hand!
How frugal in economy,
  To save her sinking land!

Foreign productions she rejects,
  With nobleness of mind,
For home commodities; to which She's prudently inclined.

She works, she lends, she gives away,
The labors of her hand;
The priest, the poor, the people all
Do find in her their friend.

She clothes herself and family,
And all the sons of need;—
Were all thus virtuous soon we'd find
Our land from slavery freed."

Lieut. Joseph[5] Porter, of Samuel[4] Porter, b. Abington, June 10, 1730; lived in Bridgewater and Stoughton; April 9, 1765, he bought house and lot of his uncle, Isaac Packard, in what is now West Bridgewater, where Pardon Keith now lives. (1878.) In 1777, April 20, he sold the same to Nathan Keith, and removed about that time into Stoughton, near North Bridgewater line. He and wife both admitted to North Bridgewater church, in 1780, of which his uncle John Porter, was the minister. He was a Lieutenant in the militia in the time of the Revolutionary war. He married Elisabeth, daughter of Samuel and Content (Whitcomb) Burrill, of Weymouth, Jan. 25, 1753; she was born July 4, 1733; she went to Abington to teach school, and was there married. She was a woman of remarkable personal beauty, as were her daughters also. He died Jan. 15, 1803, in the 75th year of his age. His widow died Mar. 26, 1822, aged 89. His will, of which subjoined is a copy:

In the Name of God, Amen.—I, Joseph Porter, of Stoughton, in the county of Norfolk and Commonwealth of Massachusetts, Gentlemen, being advanced in age, but of sane mind and memory, do this sixteenth day of February, one thousand eight hundred and two, make and publish this my last will and testament.

Imprimis—I give to my beloved wife, Elizabeth, the easterly end or half of my new dwelling house, and so much of the cellar as is necessary for her use, also one-half of the buttery, in the other part of the house, and the privilege of the oven, well, dooryard, &c., during her natural life; also the improvement of one good cow which is to be kept on my farm for her use during natural life; also one good yearling hog, well fatted yearly, and nine bushels of Indian corn and three bushels of rye, six pounds of goods sheep's wool, twelve pounds of good flax (well dressed) yearly, and a sufficiency of cider, apples and sauce, and a sufficiency of wood to keep one fire, cut up fit for the hearth, and at the door, during her natural life, and ten dollars in cash, yearly, so long as she lives; also all my indoor movables and household furniture (except my wearing apparel, barrels, casks, &c.) during her natural life.

Item.—I give to my son Joseph Porter, all my new dwelling house and land it stands on, well, dooryard, &c., forever, reserving to his mother the improvement of so much of the same as is above expressed, during her natural life; also my horse for the purpose of helping his mother to meeting on the Lord's days as often as she is able and inclined.

Item.—I give to my son Robert Porter my old dwelling house which he now lives in (and not the land it stands on.)

Item.—I give to my son Isaac Porter one hundred and forty dollars and thirty-three cents, to be paid by my executors after named, in two years after my decease.

Item.—I give to my son Lebbeus Porter, one hundred and forty dollars and thirty three cents, to be paid by my executors in two years after my decease.

Item.—I give to my daughter Elizabeth, the wife of Samuel Linfield, twenty dollars, to be paid by my executors in two years after my decease; also one equal share with her three sisters of the indoor moveables and household furniture which is given to her mother (after her decease.)

Item.—I give to my daughter Hannah, the wife of Jonathan Battles, twenty dollars, to be paid by my executors in two years after my decease; also an equal share with her three sisters of the indoor moveables and household furniture which is given to her mother, (after her decease.)

Item.—I give to my daughter Content, the wife of Benjamin Gill, twenty dollars, to be paid by my executors in two days after my decease; also an equal share with her three sisters of the indoor moveables and household furniture which is given to her mother, (after her decease.)

Item.—I give to my daughter Mehitable, the wife of Daniel Brown, twenty dollars, to be paid by my executors in two years after my decease; also an equal share with her three sisters of the indoor movables and household furniture which is given to her mother (after her decease.)

Item.—I give to my five sons, Joseph, Robert, Isaac, Lebbeus and Cyrus, all my wearing apparel, to be equally divided among them.

Item.—After my just debts and funeral charges and the aforesaid legacies are paid, all the remainder of my estate, real or personal, of whatever name or nature, or wherever the same may be found, I give to my three sons, Joseph Porter, Robert Porter, and Cyrus Porter, their heirs and assigns, to be equally divided among them, they paying as above expressed in this Instrument.

Lastly—I do constitute and ordain my three sons last mentioned, viz: Joseph, Robert, and Cyrus, sole executors of this my last will and testament. In witness whereof, I do hereunto set my hand and seal this day and year as above written.

(Seal) JOSEPH PORTER.

Signed, sealed, and published and pronounced and declared, by the said Joseph Porter, as and for his last will and testament, in the presence of us, who, at his request and in his presence, hereunto set our names as witnesses to the same.

Rev. John[5] Porter, of Rev. John[4] Porter. Relating to him—a correspondent of the Brockton (Mass.) Gazette, of Dec. 26, 1878, probably Ellis Ames, Esquire, of Canton, gives the following:

"John Porter, Jr., after graduating at Yale, studied for the ministry, and used to preach occasionally and to teach school; the late Joseph Sylvester, Esq., stating to the writer many years since that he was one of his pupils. He was residing in the North Parish in 1779, when a call was made by the Continental Congress upon the state of Massachusetts to fill up their quota of fifteen battalions in the Continental army. Young Porter, then twenty-seven years of age, responded to the call, and procuring the necessary authority to recruit a company, undertook the work of enlistment in the four parishes of Bridgewater and in Easton. His efforts were successful, and at the election of officers he was chosen captain, and himself and company were mustered into the regular army. He was soon after appointed chaplain of the regiment, but at the same time retained command of his company. The writer has several times talked with one of the privates who enlisted in Capt. Porter's company in 1779, and with another soldier who was in the same regiment, both of whom spoke of him as a brave man and an efficient and enthusiastic officer. He was soon after promoted to the rank of Major, and in 1780, in the absence of the Colonel and Lieut. Colonel, he was for some time in command of the regiment.

One extremely hot day in August of this year, the army was on a forced march through New Jersey, and the soldiers suffered much from heat, dust and thirst; nevertheless as orders were pressing, the officers continued to push them forward as fast as possible. About one o'clock in the afternoon Major Porter's regiment came along to a place in the road where there were some shade trees; the men were covered with sweat and dust, and in their weariness they could not resist the temptation to cast themselves down in the cooling shade and take a few minutes' rest. Shortly after, Gen. Poor, of Exeter, N. H., who was in command of the brigade, rode up and ordered Major Porter to call up his men and proceed on their march. The latter, though sympathizing deeply with his soldiers, and knowing with them that a brief halt would furnish them with all the more strength for the remainder of the march, had no alternative but to issue the order given him, but not a man started in response. But a few minutes elapsed before Gen. Poor again rode up and thundered out to the regiment to fall in and move forward, at the same time bestowing upon their commander a variety of epithets and offensive comments becoming neither an officer nor a gentleman. The Major was not a man to take these insults unmoved, and addressing Gen. Poor said to him that if he were of equal grade and rank he should "hold him responsible" for the language he had used. Gen. Poor instantly replied that he would waive his rights and privileges as his superior officer, and the result was that he shortly after received from Porter a challenge to mortal combat which he promptly accepted, and the duel was fought at break of day the next morning. The seconds arranged that each should stand back to back, against the other, with loaded pistol in hand, each should advance five paces, fire over their shoulders at each other when the word should be given, then advance upon one another and finish the contest with swords. At the fire Gen. Poor fell, wounded in the back by the ball of his adversary. Major Porter, not wounded, instantly turned, drew his sword and advanced upon his foe, when the seconds interfered and stopped all further proceedings. Gen. Poor's wound proved fatal, and he died on the 8th of September following. The affair was hushed up as much as possible, but Major Porter was not long after relieved of his command in consequence. Rev. John Porter and all the family were greatly distressed by this conduct of one so near to them, and rarely made allusion to it. Indeed, it is not supposed that it was generally known among the people of the time.

Major Porter's accomplishments as an officer were widely known, and a few years after he was designated as aide-de-camp of Gen. Layfayette, and on the return of the latter to France at the conclusion of the Revolutionary War, accompanied him thither. On his return home, Major Porter used to narrate to his friends here, his introduction by Gen. Lafayette to Louis XVI, king of France, and to his queen, Maria Antoinette. He subsequently moved to the small island of Curacoa, in the West Indies, where he engaged in mercantile pursuits and where he probably died, though the time and circumstances of his decease were never known to his friends."

Lydia[6] Porter, of Ebenezer[5] Porter, b. in Abington, 1758; married Joseph Beal, of East Bridgewater, Oct. 29, 1774; he was a son of Jonathan and Abigail (Harlow) Beal, b. 1752; he removed to Plainfield, Mass., in 1779, where he is known as the "Mountain Miller." Many years ago, Rev. William A. Hallock wrote a tract for the American Tract Society, (No. 254) giving an account of his life, under the name of the "Mountain Miller," which has had an immense circulation. I am indebted to it for much information relating to Mr. Beal. Pecuniary embarrassments induced Mr. Beal, in 1779, to provide for himself and family a new home, and he accordingly removed to Plainfield, where his axe soon laid open a spot sufficient to build thereon a house. In 1789, a year of great scarcity of provisions, in the absence of himself and wife, his house was burned, and nearly all his store of provisions he had laid in,—thus losing the fruits of nearly ten years of toil and labor. This great loss induced him to seek the consolations of religion, and he was about that time converted, and in 1791, publicly consecrated himself to the cause of Christ, by uniting with the Congregational Church, which had been formed in the district where he lived. His was a beautiful, christian, manly life; he was especially active and useful in visiting the sick and afflicted. In all the circumstances of his life, his christian course was remarkably uniform; no calamity on the one hand, however severe, depressed his spirits; nor on the other, did any scene through which he passed, greatly elate them. He died suddenly July 20, 1813, aged 61, with no opportunity to add anything to that best evidence of his good estate, "a life of devoted piety." His wife died on the second day after his decease, July 22, 1813. At one time previous to 1800, Mrs. Beal came from Plainfield to Abington with a horse and carriage, and carried her father and mother home with her on a visit. Children:

Samuel,[7] b. Sept. 26, 1775; died June 30, 1851. Joseph,[7] b. July 3, 1778. Robert,[7] b. Dec. 7, 1780; died July 2, 1844. Lydia Loraine,[7] b. May 19, 1787; died Dec. 4, 1804. Polly,[7] b. April 13, 1789; died July 30, 1810. Louisa,[7] b. Jan. 4, 1799.

The subject of the following sketch from the Utica (N. Y.) Herald, was a graduate of the Medical Department of Georgetown University, and subsequently was resident physician at the Washington Hospital:

Our readers are, at least partially, familiar with the brave part taken by Dr. H. R. Porter, (son of Dr. Porter, of New York Mills,) in the expedition under Major Reno against the Indians, in 1876, and how narrowly he escaped from the disasters of the day on the Little Big Horn. But there is much in the thrilling reminiscences of the events in which he took part furnished by a Bismarck correspondent of the Minneapolis Pioneer-Press of a recent date, which will be read with interest by the many friends of Dr. Porter in central New York. The writer speaks of him as "one of the heroes who was not remembered in the official reports," and after speaking of the eagerness of Dr. Porter to accompany the command, and describing the scattering of Reno's forces, says:

"Porter was by the side of a dying soldier. His orderly and supplies were gone, and the command was off several hundred yards. He was alone. Bullets were pruning the trees, and a terrific yell was sounding the alarm of universal death. Porter left his last patient, and led his horse to the embankment that protected the woods. He was startled by Indians dashing by him within ten feet. They were rushing along the foot of the little bluff. Their aim was so direct in the line of the flying battalion that Porter's presence was unnoticed. He was unarmed, and his powerful black horse reared and plunged as if he was mad. Porter saw the fate that was in the immediate future if that horse escaped before he was on his back. He held on with superhuman strength; he could hold him, but that was all. To gain the saddle seemed a forlorn hope. Leap after leap with the horse quicker than he. It was a brief ordeal, but in the face of death it was a terrible one. One supreme effort, and half in the saddle the dusky charger bore away his master like the wind. He gained the full seat, and lying close upon his savior's neck was running a gauntlet where the chances of death was a thousand to one. The Indians were quick to see the lone rider, and a storm of leadened hail fell around him. He had no control of his horse. It was only a half mile dash, but it was a wild one. The horse was frenzied; he reached the river in a minute, and rushed up the bluff where Reno had gone and was then recovering himself. The horse and rider were safe. It was destiny. Porter's first remark to the officers: 'Pretty badly demoralized.' 'No,' answered Reno. 'It was a charge.' Porter took the hint, but it was a charge different from any he had ever seen or read of. * * * Porter's associate was killed, and he was alone. The afternoon of the 25th, all night, throughout the 26th, the night of that date until the forenoon of the 27th, Porter worked as few men are ever called upon to work. He had no idea that he would get out alive, and believed every man around him was doomed. Still he was the same cool and skillful surgeon that he is to-day. He had a duty to perform that seldom falls to a man of twenty-six, and yet he performed it nobly. He was surrounded by the dead, dying and wounded. Men were crying for water, for help, for relief, for life. The sun was blazing hot, the dead horses were sickening, the air heavy with a hundred smells, the bullets thick, the men falling, and the bluffs for miles black with the jubilant savages. The work of the others was not like Porter's. He must know no fear, no trembling, and no rest. He had every agonizing sight before his eyes. The afternoon of the 26th, when the Indians ceased their firing and begun to move off, there were around Porter on the ground fifty dead and fifty wounded. One in every three was either killed or maimed. I know little of hospital history, but I doubt if there is much that overshadows Porter's experience upon the bluffs overlooking the Little Big Horn. If I had the genius of Buchanan Reid, I would weave it into a song more heroic than Sheridan's Ride.

Of the doctor's service during the passage of the steamer Far West down the river with wounded, the writer says: 'There were wounds of every character, and men more dead than alive. The suffering was not terminated with the removal from the field to the boiler deck. It continued and ended in death more than once before Fort Lincoln was hailed. Here again the son of New York Mills, of the empire state, was tested. Porter watched for fifty-four hours. He stood the test.'

Col. Ezekiel[6] Porter, of Ebenezer[5] Porter, b. Weymouth, Mass., Nov. 10, 1762. Was a Revolutionery soldier; said to have resided in Groton, Mass. (?) of Hallowell, Me., where he was a merchant, and captain of the militia, 1787. Failing in business, in 1790, he and his half brother, Gershom Collier, from Weymouth, removed and settled in Farmington, on what was afterward known as Porter Hill,—they being the first settlers there. Col. Porter carried on farming on a larger scale than was ever before in that region. In 1803, he went into trade again, and traded largely for a few years. First representative from the town of Farmington to General Court of Mass., in 1799; and again in 1805. The town was originally "Sandy River Plantation," but Col. Porter had it named Farmington. He was noted for his enterprise, intelligence and wit. In Rev. Paul Coffin's "Journal of a Missionary in Maine, in 1800," in Maine Historical Society Collections, vol. 4, page 394, he says: "Sept. 15, Farmington, preached; lodged on my return at Col. Ezekiel Porter's. Porter has 50 acres corn; 50 black cattle; a large house; three barns; he lives on the hill,—a sightly place." In the probate record for Kennebec County, Maine, is the following record: "Feb. 12, 1816. Petition from widow Betsey Porter, and son, Jeremy Porter, of Ezekiel Porter, of Farmington, stating that Ezekiel Porter left his home Feb. 10, 1813, to go to Boston and Weymouth, on a visit, and had not been heard from for two years and eleven months, and asking for letters of administration on his estate." Petition was granted, and the widow administered upon the estate, which was large. He married Betsey, dau. of Asahel and Rebecca Wyman, of Groton, Mass., 1784. 883

Oliver[7] Porter, of Oliver[6] Porter, b. Marshfield; resided in Marshfield or Boston; master mariner; married Ruth Rogers, of Marshfield. Of his children, I can obtain no information, except that he had one son and daughter; he was captain of the ship Atahualpa, of Boston, owned by Theodore Lyman, trading on the North-West Coast, where he was murdered by the Indians, in June, 1805. Prince Lapham, and —— Lapham, of Marshfield, were killed at the same time. Miss M. A. Thomas, of Marshfield, writes April, 1875—that when she was a child, Mr. Richardson, of Billerica, who brought the ship safe home again, called at her father's house. The following account was written by the Hon. John S. Sleeper, and printed in the Boston Journal, of Aug. 17, 1860:

"In the month of June, 1805, the ship "Atahualpa," Capt. Porter, of Boston, on a voyage after fur, entered Sturgis' Cove, in Millbank Sound, in about 50 deg. 30 min. N. lat. Canoes filled with natives came immediately alongside, and the Indians expressed a great wish to trade. Their chief, Caillete, also went on board, and expressed the kindest feelings for white men. He was kindly treated, and seemed grateful for several valuable presents, and the captain believed he had secured his friendship, and congratulated himself on the prospect of a lucrative trade with the natives. In fact the captain was thrown completely off his guard, gave Caillete the freedom of his cabin, and allowed the savages, in large numbers, to roam about the ship. The wily chief was thus enabled to carry his treacherous designs into effect.

The ship had been at anchor several days, and nothing suspicious had occurred, when one morning Caillete came on board accompanied by a number of the natives, and cordially returned the kind greeting of the captain. A number of canoes filled with savages also soon came alongside, all eagerly desirous to trade. The captain and chief mate were on the quarter deck conversing with the Indian chief, and the second mate with a portion of the crew were on the main deck bartering with the Indians. The remainder of the crew were engaged aloft, at work on the rigging. As no suspicions were entertained of treachery, no measures were provided against a sudden attack.

The chief mate having stepped to the other side of the deck, Caillete signed to the captain to look over the quarter rail into the canoes; while he was thus engaged, the designing savage threw the captain's coat over his head, drew a dagger from his garments, and stabbed him twice in the back, and then threw him overboard. He then sounded the terrible war whoop, and the Indians brandished their weapons and threw themselves on the ship's company! The chief mate received a fatal wound from one of the savages, but nevertheless he seized a musket and shot Caillete through the head; but the second mate, the captain's clerk, and seven of the sailors who were on deck were killed or desperately wounded before they could muster arms with which to defend their lives. The cook, a stout African, was in the galley when the struggle commenced; he defended himself bravely with boiling water, which he dealt with a liberal hand, scalding all who approached; but his hot water gave out at last, and the savages split his skull with an axe. Only four men escaped without receiving wounds, and they were at work in the rigging. These men gained the deck by sliding down the backstays, and with others who were wounded, retreated to the forecastle where they found a few cutlasses and muskets, and commenced to fire upon the savages, through loop holes in the break of the forecastle deck. This greatly terrified the natives, a number of whom jumped overboard. This was seen by the sailors, who arming themselves with cutlasses, made a rush on deck. The forescuttle, however, was guarded by a muscular savage, armed with the carpenter's broad axe; as the foremost sailor thrust his head through the scuttle, the Indian aimed a blow which would have laid open his cranium if the axe had not struck the mainstay, a large rope which passed directly over the scuttle. Before the savage could recover himself, the sailor was on deck, and with a sweep of the cutlass laid the Indian dead at his feet.

The seven sailors formed a front, attacked the savages, and fought desperately for their lives. In a few moments they drove the Indians overboard, and cleared the ship. The rascals then came under the bows in their canoes, and tried to cut the cables, that the ship might drift ashore. But the sailors got a swivel from the quarter deck, and loading it with bullets, opened a brisk fire on the canoes, which compelled the savages to paddle ashore with all speed. The sailors had now possession of the ship, and proceeded at once to set the sails, cut the cable and beat out of the bay. In this they succeeded, and steering a course to the northward, the next day reached a roadstead where an American vessel was at anchor, and received assistance."

Andrew W.[7] Porter, of William[6] Porter, born Middleboro', March 2, 1795; died in Monson, Sunday, March 4, 1877. The writer of this was indebted to him for many cheering words and much information; about himself he would write nothing. Rev. C. B. Sumner, of Monson, Mass., his pastor and friend, has at my request prepared the following sketch:

"The first seventeen years of his life were spent on a farm, with the enjoyment of the usual advantages of the common school, and a few terms at Peirce Academy. Leaving home, he spent several years in a country store, first at Wareham, then at Pawtucket, R. I. An apprenticeship of six years at Oxford,* with Mr. Samuel Slater, so intimately connected with the manufacturing interests of this country fitted him to enter a company and take charge of a cotton mill, in Monson. Here he spent the remainder of his life, except six years devoted to manufacturing interests in Stafford, Conn. His business life was very successful; a man of strong constitution, of vast energy, and great power of endurance, he readily overcame obstacles that would have appalled most men. A life long affection of the heart, often very alarming, and a painful lameness the last sixteen years of his life, scarcely diminished his tireless activity. To balance these progressive qualities, he was economical, watchful of details, of good judgment, and conservative. He rapidly accumulated money, and soon acquired a controlling influence in his company, and a business reputation which won many lucrative offers in more important situations. His estate was moderate at his death; but he had doubtless given away many times its amount during his life.

An important event in his life was a deep and thorough christian experience, at the age of thirty-four. He had before been upright, observant of the Sabbath himself, and required its observance by his employees, and who gave regularly one-tenth of his income to charitable objects; but his conversion produced a great change; all the energies of his being were now concentrated in a definite object; henceforth he lived for Jesus Christ, his personal Saviour. Whether he should give up his business, and fit himself for the christian ministry, was at first a perplexing question; he finally decided to remain where God's grace found him, and show himself a christian business man. Beginning at once to live, use his resources, and plan as the Lord's steward, he determined the proper limit of his accumulations for a business capital, purposing to put all beyond that direct into the Lord's treasury.

The same firmness of principle and devotion to his Master, appeared in everything he did. In every form of church work his presence was an inspiration—his zeal, activity and wisdom were an efficient power. The church quickly chose him as deacon, and was never willing to release him. Foremost in devising and planning, he was not less valuable as an executor, whether in the more public or the more private and delicate matters. Among his own employees he was indefatigable in his efforts for the development and growth of christian virtues. Neither were his labors confined to distinctly church matters; they equally embraced every common interest of the community. In the great temperance reform he was especially prominent. The academy in Monson, also found in him a warm and helpful friend.

*Dea. Porter always understood Mr. Slater as having promised him an interest in the mills at Oxford, but when Mr. Slater's sons became his partners, he did not so understand it. For some reference to Mr. Slater, see in the appendix to this work, an account of the invention of a power loom, by Rev. Jonas Perkins, of Braintree, an intimate and beloved friend of Dea. Porter.

J. W. P.

His abounding benevolence gave a far wider scope to his labors than his own town; much of his charity was dispensed in quiet unobtrusive ways, reaching all over the land, and many missionary homes, churches, and institutions of learning, east and west, north and south, have felt the quickening influence of his sympathy, his prayers and his money. Nearly all the charitable societies of the Congregationalist denomination, and some others, were regularly the almoners of his offerings. Perhaps the A. B. C. F. M., of which he was long a corporate member, shared as large as any during his life, and it was not forgotten in the disposal of his estate. Amherst College, in its darkest days, invited his co-operation, and it was freely given; long a member of the board of assessors of the charity fund and one of the building committee for the erection of the Woods Cabinet and Lawrence Observatory, he devoted much time and thought, as well as contributed freely to the pecuniary necessities of that institution, which to-day holds a place so important to the cause of education, and to the church. But Mount Holyoke Female Seminary claims him as father, and was regarded by him with great affection. Captured by Mary Lyon before ground had been broken, his interest never lessened, nor did he relinquish his thoughtful regard for its welfare so long as his trembling fingers could guide the pencil to convey his messages of love. 'Except Mary Lyon,' wrote the present principal. 'no human being has done as much for the institution as he.' The minute of the trustees, at the meeting subsequent to his death, referring to him whose invaluable services as treasurer and steward they had gratefully acknowledged four years before, contains the following: 'For forty years he has had more or less to do with everything pertaining especially to the finances, buildings, grounds and all the externals of the Seminary; and during the longer part of this time he has had the principal oversight and management of them, and he has managed them with a wisdom, an integrity, and an unselfish devotion which are alike remarkable. For forty years, without any pecuniary reward or emolument, he gave time, thought, money and personal services unsparingly to the institution which he adopted, loved and cared for as a child.'

Mr. Porter was married Jan. 17, 1822, to Hannah Kingsbury, of Oxford, who died Dec. 5, 1869. She was a devoted christian woman, of strong character and cultivated mind, and doubtless had a large influence in moulding his character. They had four children, three of whom died in infancy, and the fourth, Elisabeth, at the age of thirteen. A second marriage was celebrated with Mrs. Mary Sigourney Butler Stafford, of Oxford (cousin of his first wife,) Jan. 17, 1872. This, too, was a very happy union, and she still survives to mourn his loss.

Deacon Porter's home, always abundant in hospitality, was a place of genial rest and enjoyment. Business men, educators, philanthropists, those connected with various benevolent enterprises, a large circle of christian ministers, missionaries, and christian men of other races, who had come to this country for sympathy and help, all found there a cordial, pleasant home.

Deacon Porter was a rare man. His loss is widely felt; but he so lived that, though dead he yet speaketh by his example, by the gracious fruits of his personal ministries, and of his multiplied offerings to the Lord, by the yet unfailing stream of his beneficence."

Rev. James[7] Porter, D. D., of William[6] Porter, b. Middleboro', Mar. 21, 1808; educated at common school and Middleboro' Academy; in 1825 entered a cotton factory, and spent one year in carding room; then went to Easton and spent some time in the weaving department; experienced religion, and felt called to preach, but thought it impossible; with another man, took a mill for one year, and prospered. At twenty-one years of age, (1829) left Easton and went to Kent's Hill Seminary, Readfield, Me., where he was soon set to preaching, to his great annoyance, as he had hoped to return to his manufacturing business, which he liked very much. He returned to Easton, and was soon at Pawtucket, and Newport, R. I., preaching. The next spring joined the New England Conference on trial. For twenty-six years he took his regular appointment from the Bishops of the Methodist Episcopal church—six years of which he was a presiding elder. Filled four stations in Boston of two years each, and residing there two of the six years of his eldership. He was trustee of Concord Biblical Institute, and of Wesleyan University at Middletown, Conn., which conferred the degree of A. M. on him—as did McKendree Coll. the degree of D. D. Was elected by the legislature of Mass., an overseer of Harvard College several years; was a member of General Conference in 1844; and six following sessions by election of his own conference. In 1856, was elected assistant book agent at New York, and removed to that city—serving twelve years there, until June 1, 1868; has since been preaching in several places. Is also a successful author of religious books. "The Compendium of Methodism"; "The Free Evangelist;"

"The Operative's Friend;" "Chart of Life;" "Winning Worker;" "History of Methodism;" all of which have had a large circulation. He has also written well and much for the religious press; is an able, pious and devoted preacher of the gospel. Is now (1878) living at 133 McDonough street, Brooklyn, N. Y. Married Jane, daughter of Nathaniel and Anna (Tinkham) Howard, of Easton, Mass., June 19, 1833; they had eight children—four of whom died in infancy:

1761. i. James F.,[8] married; resides in N. Y. city.

Rev. Lemuel[8] Porter, D. D., of Lemuel[7] Porter, born in Boston, May 1, 1809; his father being in China, did not see him until he was three years old; at an early age he was clerk in a store on Central wharf, Boston; after a while he fitted to go supercargo of a vessel to the East Indies. In the spring of the year in which he was to sail he became interested in religion and joined the Baldwin Place church, of which his mother and sister were members; he felt it his duty to preach the gospel, and fitted for college, graduating at Waterville, Me., in 1834, and Newton Theological Institute; settled over a Baptist church in Lowell, Aug., 1835, where he has preached for sixteen years with remarkable success. In 1851 he removed to Pittsfield, and settled there as pastor of the Baptist church, of which his beloved friend Governor George N. Briggs, was a member; after preaching there thirteen years, the death of his dearly loved daughter seemed to almost crush him, and his health failed; he resigned his pastorate and was appointed Secretary of the American Tract Society, at Chicago, Ill. His physicians thought the climate would be beneficial, but it was not so to be; he was attacked by a bilious fever which terminated in a typhoid fever, of which he died Oct. 17, 1864. His remains were interred at Mount Auburn, beside his father and sister. His mother, whom he dearly loved, never spoke but once after hearing of his death, but swoomed away and died. He was one of nature's noblemen, of commanding personal appearance, possessed of ardent affections and of amiable disposition; he was beloved by all who knew him. Rev. Baron Stow, D. D., in an obituary notice of him, says:

Dr. Lemuel Porter, died in Chicago, Oct. 17; he was a native of Boston. In childhood he was one of Dr. Baldwin's catechetical class; at the age of eighteen he was baptised; at twenty-six he was settled over a Baptist church in Lowell, where in a pastorate of sixteen years, and a pastorate of twelve years at Pittsfield, Mass., he baptised over one thousand and two hundred christian converts. I have been acquainted with him thirty-seven years, most of the time intimately, and I can say that I have never known, either in the pulpit, or out of it, a nobler specimen of christian manhood. I have yet to meet the first person who ever suspected him of actions or motive bordering on meanness in any department of life. His heart was large, generous, and true; his ministerial life was stained by no folly; his friends were never ashamed of him; the vilest never could speak ill of him. His character was harmoniously and beautifully developed; he commanded universal respect; he was an illustration of what a christian mother's fidelity, and a thorough intellectual training, and the sanctifying grace of God combined, could make of a human being. His record is without a blot. In Pittsfield he had the confidence and co-operation of the late Gov. Briggs, and when that great and good man departed he felt the blow as one of unusual severity. Soon his elder daughter, a young lady of uncommon worth, was suddenly removed; two such dispensations nearly crushed him. He had no ambition for literary distinctions; his great aim was to be a good preacher and pastor; in that line he had few superiors. He resorted to no expedients to secure popularity; he kept his character unimpeached, and did well his work. He held steadily on his way, a uniform light that had no eclipse. He was not perfect, but very few at the age of fifty-four retire from life leaving so unblemished a history. His labors were eminently blessed in the conversion of sinners, and the healthy growth of churches. He gradually sank a martyr to a climate to which his temperament was not adapted. At early dawn on the Sabbath his spirit passed to its home on high. He died among friends, who did their utmost to save him. His mind was peaceful when not shattered by the terrible typhoid in his brain. He spoke composedly and firmly of his trust in a Redeemer, and his apprehension that his earthly mission was near its conclusion."

He married W. Maria Skinner, Nov. 24, 1835. Mrs. Porter was of Windsor, Vt. where she now resides. Children:

2020. i. Clara Maria,[9] b. Lowell, Mass., Oct. 12, 1837; died at Pittsfield, Mass., Nov. 24, 1861. She was a most beautiful woman, in person, character, and everything which makes completeness. She had a fine education and splendid poetical talents. Her death was a severe blow to her relatives and friends. From an obituary of her by Rev. John Todd, D. D., of Pittsfield, I take the following: "Twenty-four years ago, a beautiful child was placed in the arms of these parents; the great question was, what manner of child shall this be? to-day it is answered. None but her parents can know how much that was bright, pure and lovely, dwelt in that casket which has been so suddenly crushed. With a disposition of unalloyed sweetness, with an education for which no expense was spared, seven years were spent in our excellent institution, (Maplewood, Pittsfield, Mass.;) with a memory that gave her a full mind; with a taste that selected nothing which was not refined, graceful and beautiful; with powers of mind and heart that had made her pen known very extensively; with poetical talents that were fast bringing her into notice and admiration; with a love of music, and ability to execute, that made her home like a nest of singing birds on the bough that is rocked in sunshine; her hand engaged to one to walk the journey of life, how could this young timid girl meet death, and go away from all this into eternity, without terror or regret? Clara Maria Porter, at twenty, knelt at the cross, gave her heart to Christ in an everlasting covenant, so that on her dying bed, she could speak calmly, tell her father of her firm trust in the Saviour, so that the day before she died, could sing several hymns with great sweetness, and recite with touching eloquence, her own requiem for Governor Briggs."

2021. ii. Helen Gertrude,[9] b. Lowell, Nov. 6, 1840; married James N. Edminister, Esq., of Windsor, Vermont, Nov. 5, 1867. They have a son, Lemuel Porter,[10] b. April 12, 1869.

Hannah E.[8] Porter, of Lemuel[7] Porter, b. Feb. 17, 1813; died at Warrenton, Va., Nov. 3, 1858. She was a lady remarkable for her personal beauty; loveliness of features, delicacy of form, and grace of carriage united to add a peculiar charm to her person; sprightly and amiable of character, which made her universally beloved; pious, conscientious and devoted to every good work; an affectionate wife and mother, and a useful member of society and the church. She married Rev. Joel Smith Bacon, of Georgetown, Ky., Dec. 1, 1831;

he was born in Cayuga Co., N. Y., Sept. 3, 1802; in 1822 entered Homer N. Y., Academy; grad. Hamilton College, N. Y., 1826, and at Newton Theological Seminary, 1831; taught school in Virginia; afterwards taught a classical school in Princeton, N. J., where he enjoyed the society of its literary elite, and was recognized as a gifted and scholarly man; installed pastor of First Baptist church, Lynn, April 7, 1837; resigned Dec. 13, 1839; for the next few years an efficient member of the Baptist Triennial Convention, having in charge foreign and domestic missions, with his location at Boston. In 1842 visited the Shawnee missions; in 1843, he accepted the office of President of Columbian College, Washington, D. C., where he continued with great success, until July 14, 1854, when he resigned; he spent one year in southern Georgia, another in Louisiana; afterward removing to Warrenton, Va.; and in 1859 removed to Tuscaloosa, Ala., where he was president of a female institute, in connection with his son-in-law, Prof. Latham; the war coming on, he returned to Warrenton, Va., 1860. Here he was at the head of the Fauquier Female Seminary, until 1866. For several years after this he was in the employ of the American and Foreign Bible Society. He was an earnest, devoted, christian minister, of unusual abilities; as an extemporaneous preacher and debater, not excelled; a fond, affectionate, and beloved father and husband. He died in Richmond, Va., Nov. 9, 1870. His funeral, on the 11th, was attended by ministers of all denominations; Rev. Dr. Barrows preached on the occasion, and Rev. Dr. Jeter spoke of his character and labors: "In its intellectual characteristics Dr. Bacon's mind was versatile without being superficial; popular rather than profound in its views of principles; practical, and yet fond of speculation * * fond of the study of men and things rather than of books * * ready for the defence of the established truth, yet tolerant of views manifestly erroneous, from charity toward human infirmity. Children:

ZACHARY[5] BICKNELL came from England, in 1635, with Rev. Joseph Hull and others, and probably died the next year, for the General Court ordered March 9, 163$\frac{6}{7}$, "that William Reed, having bought the house and twenty acres of land at Weymouth, unfenced, which was Zachary Bicknell's, for seven pounds thirteen shillings and four pence, of Richard Rockett and wife, is to have the sale confirmed by the child when he cometh of age, or else the child to allow such costs as the court shall think meet." Zachary and Agnes appear to have had but one child, John.[2]

The widow Agnes Bicknell, married Richard Rockett, of Braintree, (now Rockwood,) by whom she had one child, John, b. in Braintree, Dec. 1, 1641, who was the ancestor of a large portion of the Rockwoods in New England. Mrs. Agnes Rockett died in Braintree, July 9, 1643, aged forty-five years.

REV. JONAS[6] PERKINS, an Orthodox clergyman, born in North Bridgewater, Mass., Oct. 15, 1790; son of Josiah[5] and Anna (Reynolds) Perkins; [he a blacksmith, son of Josiah[4] and Abigail (Edson) Perkins, born Oct. 9, 1762; he a blacksmith, and son of Mark[3] and Dorothy (Whipple) Perkins, of Bridgewater, born Jan. 4, 1727; he a blacksmith, and son of Luke[2] and Martha (Conant) Perkins, born Sept. 17, 1695, of Plympton, Ipswich, Wenham, Beverly, Marblehead, and Hampton, N. H.; he a blacksmith, and probably youngest child of Abraham and Mary Perkins, of Hampton, N. H., born 1664.] He was a man of remarkable ingenuity and mechanical talent. Old Capt. Thomas Thompson, the next neighbor of his father, who made spinning wheels, large and small, for cotton and flax, for all the country around about Bridgewater, used often to tell that when "Jonas was just out of petticoats, all the little brooks near his father's house run all sorts of mills, and all sorts of gear were attached to innumerable wind mills, which buzzed so loud that no one could sleep in a windy night." His father thought his son wasted too much time, but when he believed that his "perpetual motion was sure to succeed," he gave up to the boy to operate as much as he pleased.

In 1804, he invented a power loom. In 1806 he wove his mother some towels by only turning a crank. His inventions were the wonder of every one in the vicinity of his home. In 1807, when about to leave home, he packed his machinery in a barrel, making his mother promise not to show it to any one. Not long after two very polite gentlemen rode up in a nice chaise, and overpersuaded her to show them the proofs of her son's genius. She finally consented, and they spent nearly two hours in looking it over. Years after, when she told the circumstances to her son, she said that at the time

"she thought it took them a good while!" When in college, which he entered as a sophomore, in 1810, he called on Mr. Slater, the great manufacturer, at Pawtucket, and talked with him about the importance of such a loom. After some conversation, during which Mr. Slater asked him where he lived, and the names of his parents, Mr. Perkins began to declare that he had accomplished the fact, and invented a power loom; whereupon Mr. Slater drew himself up to his full height, and said, "Do you think you, a little Yankee, can do what all England has been trying to do for centuries?" Upon this the young man felt insulted, and left. Whether Slater or some other man sent emissaries to discover the secret of the invention is not known; but Mr. Perkins always said that the first power loom he saw in operation had some clumsy and homely attachments, he had on his only because he had not the materials or means to employ any others," which he esteemed as proof positive that the looms he saw were patterned directly from his. He never applied for any patent, because the country was in such a confused condition, and he had determined to fit himself for a preacher of the gospel.

I have given the story of his invention, much of it as he used to tell it occasionally to his intimate friends. Thirty years ago it was a matter susceptible of absolute proof. It is not now too late to give him the credit due him for his invention. Judge Mitchell, in his History of Bridgewater, page 59, says:

"The Hon. Hugh Orr, * * * invited Robert and Alexander Barr, brothers, from Scotland, to construct carding, spinning and roping machines, at his works in East Bridgewater; and the General Court, Nov. 16, 1786, (Mr. Orr himself then being one of the Senate,) allowed them two hundred pounds for their ingenuity. * * * These were the first machines of the kind ever made in this country. Mr. Slater, with the late Mr. Moses Brown, of Providence, came to examine them on Mr. Slater's first arrival in the country, and before he had commenced any establishment of the kind. The circumstances of the visit were communicated to the writer, (Judge Mitchell,) by Mr. Brown himself, who at the same time added that these were the first machines of the kind ever made in the United States."

So that it is possible that not only the spinning machine, but the power loom also, came from Bridgewater. At the age of seventeen, Mr. Perkins commenced fitting for college at Phillips Academy, Andover; having from the time of his conversion, at ten, intended to devote himself to the christian ministry. He graduated with distinguished honor at Brown University, in 1813; studied theology with Rev. Otis Thompson, of Rehoboth; was licensed by Mendon Association, Oct. 11, 1814. On the second day of January, 1815, he was engaged to preach for the Union Religious Society, of Weymouth and Braintree, for three months, at the rate of five hundred dollars a year salary. His ministrations were so acceptable that before his time of service expired, the church and society gave him a unanimous call for settlement, which he accepted, and was ordained June 14, 1815.

"The pastorate of Rev. Mr. Perkins, covering as it did, forty-six years of active service, with fifteen added years upon the retired list, was long and successful; resulting in great good to the church and society, increasing largely their material as well as spiritual strength, adding to the membership of the church, principally during three powerful revivals, three hundred and twenty-two members.

Consecrating his whole powers to the work of the gospel ministry, uniting in himself ripe scholarship, excellent judgment, with firmness of purpose, and the strictest integrity, his was a character of the most admirable proportions. A wise and faithful pastor, he was eminently a peacemaker—and when at the full age of seventy years, in accordance with long expressed plans, he resigned his office and retired from its duties, he carried with him the affection and respect, not only of his own church and society, but that of the whole community where he lived.*"

Sept. 16, 1860, he offered his resignation, to take effect on Oct. 15 following,—and Oct. 21 he preached his farewell sermon,—taking for his text, Ephesians IV: II. "He gave some apostles, and some prophets, and some evangelists, and some pastors and teachers."

He was twice offered a professorship of mathematics in one of the colleges of New England, but declined because he thought it his duty to continue in the ministry.

* Church Manual.

He continued to live at the old homestead in East Braintree, until his death, June 26, 1874.

Upon the monument which his children erected over his remains, in the Weymouth cemetery, is inscribed the following, taken from his written farewell to his family:

"With great satisfaction I testify, that, in the doctrines of grace which I have uniformly preached during all my ministry, I have unswerving faith as being taught in the Holy Scriptures."

And also the following:

"Descended from a pious ancestry, he became a hopeful subject of divine grace at the age of ten years, and ever after maintained a consistent religious character; was pious and gentle, self denying and generous in private life; and wise, faithful, loving, earnest and successful as a minister of Christ." "He walked with God."

He married Rhoda,[6] daughter of Simeon and Molly[5] (Cary) Keith,* of Bridgewater, June 12, 1815; she was born Feb. 16, 1790, and died at the old homestead, in Braintree, Mar. 22, 1878. She was in every situation the model woman, wife, mother and friend. Her husband, in a note preliminary to his will, wrote:

"With devout gratitude I reflect on the many years I have lived with my beloved wife, whose fidelity and kindness, counsels and labors, have done me good all the days of my life; with whom I have so many times walked to the house of God in company, and enjoyed sweet communion at the table of our blessed Lord." Children:

i. Mary Ann,[7] b. April 2, 1816; m. Rev. Daniel Wight, Jr., of Scituate, April 28, 1851; died Oct. 26, 1853.

Hon. Micah[7] Porter, of Elias[6] Porter, born in Weymouth, Aug. 23, 1793, and baptised at South Parish church, Nov. 10, 1793; his father soon after removed to Canaan, N. H.; he left home at the age of twenty, with eleven dollars, to fight his way through life for himself; and the first money he earned was for teaching school, in Herkimer county, New York. He was a mason by trade, and in March, 1819, removed to Toronto, Canada West, going around Lake Ontario from Rome, N. Y., in a cutter. At Toronto he erected the Parliament buildings, and many elegant private residences. At Rome, New York, he had with his uncle erected the United States Arsenal. From Toronto he removed to the village (now city) of Rochester, N. Y., in 1821–2, where he continued until June, 1832, when he removed to the Territory of Michigan, and settled on a farm in Dexter, (now Sharon,) in that State. He was one of the first justices of the peace appointed by the Governor of the Territory; supervisor of the town, 1842; and a member of the Legislature in 1843. In the language of "the craft," he was a "speculative mason," besides being an "operative mason;" while a resident of Toronto, he made the entire circuit of Lake Ontario as a visiting member among the lodges of the fraternity, during which time he presided at the initiation of a son of Brant, the noted Indian chief.

While in Rochester, in 1827, occurred the abduction of William Morgan, followed by the anti-masonic excitement. It was a reign of terror in that region. Wives left their husbands, children their fathers; fathers disinherited their sons; churches dismissed their pastors; masons were excluded from juries, and from participating in public business. During all these times, Mr. Porter, living in the vicinity and knowing all the circumstances, steadfastly adhered to the sublime teachings of the order, and connected with it the graces and virtues of a Christian life. He united with the Presbyterian church in Rochester, N. Y., in 1826. His life of discipleship was not a passive one; to his faith he added works; he seemed to realize fully that he was a steward here below, and that God's visible church needed systematic business members. He and his first wife were of the seventeen original members of the Presbyterian church, at Manchester, Mich., founded Dec. 26, 1835. He afterwards worshipped at Grass Lake, Mich. Finally, feeling the need of a church nearer home, and as the town became populated, he made it his delight and pleasure to put his whole heart to the work of erecting the Congregational church in Sharon, Mich., which was finished from turret to foundation stone, paid for and dedicated to the worship of God, before there was a society organized to worship in it. That edifice, close to where he now sleeps, is the best and most sacred monument that could be erected to his memory, and stands there as a testimony of his untiring energy and Christian activity. He was strong without anger, decided without dogmatism, firm without obstinacy, and earnest without fanaticism. After arriving at the age of seventy, feeling the burden and care of a large farm too much for him, he sold it, and moved to the village of Manchester, near Sharon, in 1863, where he worshipped in the church of which he was an original member. During his long and painful sickness, he evinced an abiding and clear faith in Christ Jesus as his only hope of eternal life. He died July 7th, 1870, and on the 9th of July his remains were taken to Sharon, where, after an impressive discourse by his pastor, Rev. J. Gordon Jones, his Masonic brethren committed them to the grave "in due form." He was married first, in 1817. Children:

i. Charles B.,[8] dentist, Ann Arbor, Mich.
ii. Byron R.,[8] resides Foristell, Miss.
iii. George,[8] settled in Valparaiso, Ind., and died there, Feb. 20, 1870, leaving two daughters and a son.

JOHN PORTER,

Of Hingham and Salem, (Danvers) tanner, was born in England, probably in Dorset, in 1596. In what ship or at what date he came to New England, I have not learned. Before settling at Hingham, he may have lived for a short time in Boston or Dorchester. Hon. Solomon Lincoln, in his History of Hingham, 1827, page 43, says he was a settler there in 1635. No grant of land is found to him at that date; only the fact, that in one grant made that year at Weary-all (Otis) hill, it was described as "bounded on land of John Porter." Mr. Quincy Bicknell, who is authority in such matters, suggests that the description may have been written at a later period. In the early settlement of Hingham, there were two sets of records—town and proprietors'; the town records gave dates when the votes were passed making a grant; and the proprietors' records, the date when it was completed by the person appearing and taking the same. The first lots were house-lots, thirty in number, and were drawn or granted, Sept. 18, 1635, O. S. In the names of grantees * of these lots, the name of John Porter does not appear. After the house-lots, grants of land for other purposes followed. The house-lots were laid out so as to make as compact a settlement as possible, as a safeguard against Indian attacks. There was a system in laying out the lots: Commencing at a point near the harbor, and laying off on a street called Town Street—(North Street, in 1827) extending westward from the place of beginning, about one mile, and skirting the north side of an irregular swamp, until reaching the head of it, on which they made a short street extending to the south side of the swamp; and then returning on the south side of said swamp to within one-quarter of a mile of the place of beginning, where the street stopped on an arm of the sea. Of the first, twenty-eight were on the north side of the swamp, and two on the head. The office of Quincy Bicknell is now (1878) on the 29th lot. The extent of the street is about one mile in length. The lots on the south side of the swamp were allotted in 1636. Near the easterly termination of the south street, they laid out a street at right angles thereto; and near the junction, on a slight eminence, the first meeting house was built. This last street was extended about one mile from the meeting house. About midway on the street, commenced a plain, and here they laid out an open square, of about fifty acres, which was left for a common or training field. This was in what is now Centre Hingham. On the south and east side of the common, house-lots were granted in 1637 and 1638; on the west side, lots were granted in 1638; on the north-east corner of the common, two house-lots were granted Sept. 1, 1637, the first to William Carlyle, and the second to John Porter. Both these lots, or nearly all of them, are now the property of the Hingham Agricultural and Horticultural Society—the hall of the society being on the Carlyle lot; the John Porter lot fronts on East street, and is probably where he built his first house in New England.

September 2, 1637, there were laid out to John Porter, for a house-lot, 7 acres; 5 acres for a planting lot; 38 acres for a great lot, on the east side of the river; 4 acres of salt marsh at Layford's Liking Meadows; 3 acres of fresh meadow at Crooked Meadows; for a small planting lot, 5 acres at the Plain Neck; 2 acres of salt meadow at Wear Neck; and 2 acres of fresh meadow at Turkey Meadow.

The proprietors of Hingham claimed a portion of Nantasket lands, and made grants of land there March, 1637-8. The ninth lot was granted to John Porter, and contained four acres of upland, and twenty acres of meadow. Nantasket contested the legality of this appropriation of lands, and the General Court, in Sept., 1643, voted that, "The former grant to Nantascot was again voted and confirmed, and Hingham were willed to forbear troubling the Court any more about Nantascot." Hingham afterward made compensation to those who suffered loss by this decision, by granting other lands. In 1640, John Porter was one of a committee to divide Cohasset lands remaining. May 13, 1640, he was appointed by the General Court to value horses, mares, cows, oxen, goats, and hogs, for Hingham. "June 2, 1641, the fine of John Porter, James Ludden, and John Gurney, which they forfeited for want of gunpowder, was remitted by the General Court. Ludden and Gurney were of Weymouth. In 1641, he with others, was chosen to make a rate in Hingham. Also, constable of Hingham. He was deputy to General Court for Hingham, May 20, 1644. He removed to Salem, now Danvers, 1644. A Mary Porter, supposed to be his wife, joined the church there May 5, 1644; but his own name does not appear in the list of members until 1649. May 10, 1643, John Porter, of Hingham, bought of Rev. Samuel Sharp, of Salem, his farm in Salem, lying north of Mr. Skelton's, for 110 pounds, and agreed to pay for it in three installments, viz: May 20, 1643, fifty pounds; May 1, 1644, thirty pounds; May 1, 1645, thirty pounds—but did not pay the last until Jan. 20, 1652.

"John Porter, of Salem, grants unto Nathaniel Baker, of Hingham, his house and lot in Hingham, with all the barnes and outhouses, &c., and all the several parcels of land in Hingham, bought by the said Porter, or granted by the town, date 15, (1) 1648—sealed and delivered in presence of Wm. Aspinwall."

June 29, 1648, he bought of Simon Bradstreet, of Boston, one-third of a farm containing one hundred and eighty acres, which was bought of Abraham Page, late of Boston, tailor. Also, same day, bought of William and Richard Haynes, of Salem, two-thirds of Bishop's farm. In 1650, he bought the farm of Emanuel Downing, in Salem, 500 acres, which in 1663, he gave his son Joseph as a marriage portion. He also made other purchases of lands, so that at the time of his death, he was the largest land holder in Salem village,* his lands lying in what is now Danvers, Salem, Wenham, Topsfield, and Beverly. In a deposition given by him, Nov. 23, 1674, he states that "about 30 years ago I came to live at Salem; that then and ever since, the hemlock tree at the head of Crane's river, was accounted Mr. Bishop's bound." It was near the hemlock bound that Mr. Porter and Mr. Endicott, at some time, built a saw mill, as testified to by Isaac[2] Porter—Mr. Endicott being desired "to speak with Nathaniel Putnam, to give them liberty to droun his land by making use of the saw mill, which was assented to, and the said hemlock by the saw mill was accounted Mr. Bishop's bound." The house which he built and lived in, probably stood on the plains in Danvers, on Sharp's farm, near the site of the Unitarian church, and is said to have been destroyed by fire twenty or thirty years since.

Mr. Porter was a man of energy and influence,—well known in the Colony, and held many official positions,—among which was deputy to General Court, in 1668. He died in Salem village, (now Danvers,) Sept. 6, 1676. In a deposition given in 1669, he stated his age to be 73; in another in 1674, he gave it as 79. His widow Mary, whom he probably married in England, is said by Judge Savage to have died Feb. 6, 1684; while Perley Derby, Esq., eminent authority in Essex county matters, says she was living in 1685.

I give a copy of will of John Porter, from Essex County Records:

John[2] Porter, of John[1] Porter, unmarried. Mariner; was in prison in 1665, for abuse of his parents; in fact he was a bad fellow. His case was taken up against the colony by the royal commissioners, which made a great stir among the people at that time. He died Mar. 16, 1684. In 1683, June 2, when giving evidence in court, he stated his age to be sixty-five. In 1681, he gave it as fifty-two; and his counsel before the royal commissioners, in 1665, stated his age to be about thirty, which was probably correct. His estate was administered upon by his brothers Joseph and Israel.

Samuel[2] Porter, of John[1] Porter, mariner, of Wenham, where he owned a house and a large farm, near Wenham pond. He married Hannah, dau. of William and Elisabeth Dodge, of Beverly, (who married after his decease, Dec. 2, 1661, Thomas Woodbury, of Beverly, by whom she had nine children, and died Jan. 2, 1689, aged 45.) Samuel Porter died 1660. His will, dated 10th, 12 mo., 1658, "being bound to the Barbadoes."

"Imp. I give to my dearly beloved wife, Hannah Porter, the one-half of my farme during her life. Item, I give to my son, John Porter, the other half of my farme at Wenham; and after the death of my wife, the other half to returne unto him, more or less. I desire my ffather Porter, and my father-in-law, William Dodge, and Edmund Batter, to be my overseers."

SAMUEL PORTER.

10. i. John,[3] b. 1658.

Joseph[2] Porter, of John[1] Porter, baptised in Hingham, Sept. 9, 1638, by Rev. Peter Hobart. He was of Salem, Danvers part. Sept. 17, 1678, he bought of Hilliard Veren, Jr., 40 pole of land in Salem. Nov. 24, 1696, bought of Sarah Williams, (widow of Joseph,) and her son Daniel, about 20 acres of land on south side Ipswich river, in Topsfield, bounded south on Benjamin Porter. June 5, 1704, bought of Ben Marston, of Salem, 100 rods land on the road that leads along North river. He married, Jan. 27, 1664, Anne, dau. of Major William and Ann Hathorn, baptised first church, Salem, Dec. 17, 1643. The marriage contract is taken from registry of deeds, Essex county, book 3, page 139:

"Joseph Porter, Salem,—agreement between his father, Serg't John Porter, and Wm. Hathorne, concerning the marriage of said Joseph with Anna, daughter of said Wm. Hathorne,—wherein said Hathorne agrees to give his daughter £50 within two years from date of their marriage; and said John Porter engages to give his son Joseph that farm known as the Downing farm, with one-half an acre of land in the town, near Mr. George Keazer, both which shall be given Joseph on day of marriage. And also £50, to be paid in horses, neate cattle, hides, cider, some corn, and some money, within one year after marriage, Jan. 2, 1664."

His wife died before him. He died Dec. 12th, 1714. His will, dated July 15, 1713; proved Jan. 8, 1715:

"Gives son Joseph all my homestead yt I now live upon; my dwelling house and barn, with all other housing, together with my whole farm, (known formerly by ye name of Mr. Downing's farm,) excepting so much as I shall see cause hereafter otherwise to dispose of, which farm is bounded on ye east or easterly by a lot of lieutenant Perkins, of Topsfield, as also by Topsfield common land, and by Wenham meadows; south or southerly by Leache's meadow, and Daniel Andrews, his land, as also by Raye and Putnam's meadow land; west or westerly by Salem common land; and north or northerly by land of Michael Dunnell, of Topsfield, to ye bounds first mentioned.

2d. I do give my son Samuel ye land which he now lives upon and hath improved, together with the dwelling house or housing standing on said land where he now dwells, together with an hundred acres of land adjoining to ye land he now lives upon, it being ye southerly part of my farm, bounded as aforesaid—and also another lot of meadow land, ten acres on Salem and Wenham line.

3d. I do give my son Nathaniel, 20 acres of land, which I bought of widow Williams, of Salem, joining to Isaac Esty's land—also ten acres of meadow land adjoining what I shall give my son William.

4th. I give my son William 20 acres of land, be it more or less, lying west of land he now has in possession; also ten acres of meadow adjoining to Samuel's meadow. * * * Also my four sons before mentioned shall have an equal share in my upland or marsh which I have in Skelton's neck. * * * Also my will is that my sons aforesaid together with my daughters shall have an equal share therein * * * of what Leather I have, they all paying an equal part for ye dressing of what hides there be in ye tan vats to make it leather. To son Joseph my negro boy. * * daughters Anna, Mary, Abigail, Hephzebah, Ruth and Mehetabel to have 50 pounds each besides what they have had—to be paid by Executors. * * * Gives to Margaret King that hath been a faithful servant to me five pounds.

Children:

20. x. Joseph,[3] b. April, 1681.
21. xi. Ruth,[3] baptised Sept., 1682; m. Jesse Dorman.
22. xii. Mehetable,[3] baptised Sept., 1682; m. Thos. Cummings of Boxford, Mar. 20, 1705.

Benjamin[2] Porter, of John[1] Porter, bap. Hingham, Nov., 1639, by Rev. Peter Hobart; died Jan. 7, 172 2-3, aged 83. (Beverly Second Church records.) He was unmarried, and after death of his parents, lived with his brother Israel, to whom he gave most of his estate, "in consideration of his maintenance, in food, washing, and lodging for many years," Feb. 17, 1701. He inherited the most of his property by his father's will, including the Bishop farm of two hundred acres in "Blind Hole," on the Topsfield line, and the one hundred acres his father bought of Mr. Bradstreet. He deeded Joseph and Nathaniel Porter, sons of his brother Joseph, one-third of his right in Skelton's neck, fifty acres, which he had by his father's will; also same day to same, a parcel of land at "Blind Hole," and Bishop's farm on north side of Topsfield line. Jan. 3, 1700, he gave brother Israel the land bequeathed him by his father, called Gott's corner. No settlement of his estate after his decease is recorded, as he appears to have disposed of it all previously.

Israel[2] Porter, of John[1] Porter, bap. Hingham, Feb. 12, 1743, by Rev. Peter Hobart. He was one of first tax payers in old Salem, (now Danvers,) 1682. Member of first Church, where all his children were baptised. In 1676, he bought of his brother Benjamin, his one-half of land which they had of their father, nine score acres, which was bought of Mr. Gott, Jacob Barney, Jeffrey Massey, William Watson, and Jno. Pickard, all of which was bounded on Jacob Barney's, Sharp's farm, Josh Ray, and Capt. John Corwin, formerly Mr. Peters. "30th, 11 mo., 1677, Israel Porter, aged thirty-two, or thereabouts, testifies that eighteen or twenty years since his father was desired by Topsfield to show the bounds of his land which lie within their township, (I being present,) my father showed three bounds belonging to that part of his Downing farm, within Topsfield line; also three bounds belonging to his land in "Blind Hole," all which bounds were accepted and approved of by Topsfield." Apr. 15, 1681, he was agent and trustee for Salem village. Feb. 20, 1689, he and his brother Benjamin signed a petition to form a distinct town out of Salem village. Oct. 11, 1686, he with other selectmen and trustees of Salem, purchased of the Indians for £20, all the tract of land "lying to the westward of Bass River, whereupon the town of Salem is built." He married Nov. 20, 1672, Elisabeth, daughter of Maj. Wm. and Ann Hathorn, sister to his brother Joseph's wife; she born July 5, 1649. He died Nov., 1706. His will, dated Nov. 7, 1706, proved Nov. 28, of same year, gives to two eldest sons, John and Israel, "all that part of Sharp's farm lying to the westward of the county highway, going from Salem to Ipswich, to be equally distributed between them." Also Bishop's farm, excepting 50 acres which he gives to his youngest daughter, Anna Porter, to his three eldest daughters, Elisabeth, wife of Joseph Putnam, Sarah, wife of Abel Gardner, and Ginger, wife of Sam Leach, "all that land I bought of Topsfield, together with all my right which I had of my brother Benjamin Porter, lying in Blind Hole. To William, the land that was formerly Mr. Gott's, together with all the additional grants adjoining thereto, lying at the head of Frostfish river, lying by Sharp's farm, commonly known by the name of Gott's Corner; also a little piece of land off Sharp's farm, lying on east side of Frostfish brook, and so to end of bridge, that he may come to ye salt works for a landing place." To his beloved wife, Elisabeth, "one-half of housing and lands,—part of Sharp's farm, of Skelton's neck, and also the other half of above during son Benjamin's minority, or till he comes to age of 21. Son William not to enjoy his portion till 21 years of age." Provides that "brother Benjamin shall live with my wife and son Benjamin, and be comfortably maintained during his life." Inasmuch as his daughter Ginger Leach had deceased, he gave her share to her husband, Samuel Leach, who had been a kind husband to her. His wife to be sole executrix of his will.

John[3] Porter, of Samuel[2] Porter, of John[1] Porter, of Wenham; probably born there in 1658,—his father's farm, which he inherited and upon which he lived and died, being in that town; his lands extended from Wenham Lake to Pleasant Pond. In May, 1716, he and wife Lydia, gave a deed to John Ober and als., of Beverly, of three-eighths of third division in east part of Wenham, laid out to said Porter. May 28, 1741, by deed of gift to son Samuel, of three acres; April 23, 1723, deed of gift to son John, of forty acres in his possession, and four acres of meadow called Denman's lot, seven acres meadow called Fiske's lot, and one common right in great swamp. "May 20, 1746 for five shillings, to son Jonathan four acres salt marsh, ten acres wood land, west side Wenham Pond, all other lands bought of John Newman, all my other lands joining what was part of Mr. Fiske's farm; one common right in great swamp; also £100." July 2, 1739, "deed of gift to sons Benjamin, of Boxford, and Nehemiah, of Ipswich, eighteen acres upland and meadow, on the river running out of Wenham pond, on condition they pay their six sisters, Lydia, Hannah, Elisabeth, Mehitable, Mary and Sarah, £5 each within twelve months after my decease." Aug. 1, 1738, to son Samuel his house and homestead on west side of road leading to Wenham meeting house; five acres salt marsh, ten acres north part of my land on west side of Wenham pond, on condition he pay his six sisters £30 each within two years after my decease." April 23, 1723, to son Nehemiah, of Ipswich, gift of forty-six acres of land in his possession. In 1692, during the witchcraft delusion, he and his wife Lydia were witnesses at court, and testified against one Goody Bibber, who accused Sarah Wildes of bewitching her, "and that said Bibber was an unruly, turbulent woman, would have strange fits when crost, was double tongued, very idle in her calling, mischief making, very much given to speaking bad words against her husband, obscene in her language, and could fall into fits when she pleased, etc." He was a man of high respectability; representative to General Court 1712, '24, 26; moderator of town meetings, 1723, '24, '27, '28, '29; maltster and farmer; he married Lydia,[3] daughter of Henry[2] and Lydia Herrick, of Beverly; born 1661; died Feb. 12, 1737, in the seventy-

Joseph[4] Porter, of Nathaniel[3] Porter, born Sept. 22, 1715. In 1743, April 12, he sold his brothers Nathaniel and Elijah, all his right in estate of his father, Nathaniel, lying in Topsfield.

In East Randolph, (Braintree) 1746—Dr. E. Alden says "he was owner of first vehicle used for conveyance of persons ever used in town (Randolph;) was a rudely constructed chaise without a top, called a chair; he resorted to its use from necessity, being afflicted with a lameness which prevented him from mounting a horse, or going a long distance on foot. He was a considerable land owner." Dr. Alden says he "was son of Dea. William[3] Porter, of Norton, and brother of Benjamin,[4] Jabez,[4] and Seth,[4] of Braintree." But as there is no mention of any Joseph's birth on Topsfield records, or in will of Dea. William[3] Porter, I place him as son of Nathaniel[3] Porter, where he no doubt belongs, his age at death agreeing with date of Nathaniel[3] Porter's son Joseph's birth.

He married Ruth Towne; he died in East Randolph, Mar. 8, 1797, aged 81; his widow died April 14, 1799, aged 80; they had four children, one son and three daughters, who all lived and died in East Randolph, and were remarkable for the strength and accuracy of their memories.

159. i. Ruth,[5] born 1747; married Joseph[5] White, Jr., Esquire, of Randolph, June 16, 1766. He was son of Joseph[4] and Ruth (Nash) White, born in Braintree, (Randolph.) Samuel[4] Porter, of Eliezer[3] Porter, born in Danvers, Jan. 30, 1743; graduated at Harvard College, 1763; lawyer; lived in Ipswich and Salem. March 30, 1764, Samuel Porter, gent., for thirteen pounds six shillings and eight pence, bought from Tarrant Putnam and Mary his wife, thirty-seven acres fifty poles of land that Abigail Porter (his youngest sister) died seized of, in which said Tarrant and Mary quit-claim their right. June 5, 1771, Samuel Porter, of Ipswich, gent., for 658 pounds 10 shillings, L. M., sold Archelaus Rea, of Topsfield, 5 3-4 acres 16 poles meadow, dwelling house and barn, in Danvers, bounded on Israel Andrews, Jonathan and David Putnam, Tarrant and Benjamin Putnam, said Samuel Porter, heirs of Daniel Gott, John and Archelaus Rea, and right to use cider mill, on land standing to right of Mary, wife of Tarrant Putnam. Samuel Porter, of Ipswich, 1772, bought land of Elijah and Thomas Porter, of Topsfield. April, 1774, Samuel Porter, esquire, of Salem, for 100 pounds, sold Joseph Porter, of Danvers, twenty acres of land bounded on Tarrant Putnam and others. He was a loyalist, and fled to England during the revolutionary war. Sabine, in his History of American Loyalists, says his name occurs among the barristers and attorneys who addressed Gov. Hutchinson, on his departure for England in June, and among the Salem addressers of Gov. Gage, on his arrival, June, 1774; and is to be found in the banishment act of 1778. He died in London, 1798; lived in Wormwood street. His will, dated Sept. 29, 1797; proved March 9, 1798. Administration granted to Thomas Graham, executor of the will in London, and Jacob Ashton, executor and administrator in Salem, Mass. To the children of his sister Mary, (wife of Tarrant Putnam,) deceased, he gives one hundred dollars each. To Mr. Ashton, for his friendship, "whatever money or effects he may happen to have in hand for me at my decease, and wherein such money may be short of 200 dollars, (pounds?) * * I would have it made up." To Mr. Novello, "with whom I for the most of a dozen years resided, in Oxford street, ten pounds for his friendly and honest demeanor." "To my friend Thomas Graham, of Lincoln's Inn, I leave the rest he may owe me, with any justice he may obtain of this nation for my losses and ruin on its account, excepting what may be pretended so thereunto me on pension of eighty pounds, assigned some time in 1788," &c., &c. The mourning ring for my friend, Richard Saltonstall, esquire, with another provided by Mr. Graham, I wish to be sent to Mr. Ashton, the former to be by him handed over to my said friend Saltonstall's half-brother, Nathaniel Saltonstall, of Haverhill, in the county of Essex; and the other to be kept by Mr. Graham. (Ashton?)

Asahel[5] Porter, probably of William[4] Porter, of Woburn; killed by British troops at Lexington, April 19, 1775; about twenty-three years of age. John Munroe in his deposition, Dec. 28, 1824, (Elias Phinney's His. of Battle of Lexington,) says "Asahel Porter, of Woburn, who had been taken prisoner by the British, on their march to Lexington, attempted to make his escape, and was shot within a few rods of the common." Hon. Charles Hudson, of Lexington, says he was a non-combatant, taken without arms. Sewall's History of Woburn, page 362, says in connection with the Lexington fight, "of these who went from Woburn, two did not return, viz: Mr. Asahel Porter, son of William Porter," etc. A marble stone erected to his memory, in Woburn cemetery, April 21, 1875, just one hundred years after his burial. "Married at Seabrook, N. H., Oct 3, 1773, by Rev. Samuel Perley, Mr. Asahel Porter and Mrs. Abigail Brooks, both of Salem." I suppose this to be this man.

Asahel[6] Porter, whom I suppose to have been son of above, bought of ——— Mason, a farm in Reading and removed from Stoneham. Married Betsey Atwell, 1796; she died 1869. Children:

i. Asahel.[7]
ii. Mary,[7] m. Capt. Geo. Bancroft, 1819.

Dec. 11, 1814; resides in Corning, Holt Co., Missouri; physician; he writes me a letter, dated Nov. 4, 1878, in which he says he had in his possession an old parchment deed, given by Indians, conveying title to land about Salem, to Capt. John Putnam, father-in-law of Lieut. John[3] Porter, which he donated to the Western Reserve Historical Society, of Cleveland, Ohio, some years since; also a book, "The History of the Colony of New Plymouth," printed about 1664, on the fly leaf of which was the autograph of John[3] Porter, which his mother willed to his son Horace N.[9] Martin, who was killed in the late war, which Dr. Martin presented to the Baptist Historical Society, of Philadelphia, Penn.; the president of that society writing him that the book was "a priceless acquisition;" also he has now in his possession, a book the title of which is "Chronicles of the Kings of England," printed 1661, upon the fly leaf of which the autograph of John[3] Porter, was written. Also, he says he has seen a silver headed ebony cane, with the name of Lieut. John[3] Porter, date from 1680 to 1688. The Indian deed was probably given to John[1] Putnam, original settler; there has been some difference of opinion as to which family Jonathan Porter, who m. Mercy Foote, belonged; the possession of Lieut. John[3] Porter's books, cane, etc., would seem to clearly indicate that he was of the Salem family. J. W. P.

General Moses[6] Porter, of Benjamin[5] Porter, born in Danvers, Mar. 26, 1756. (The house he was born in is still standing, and one of the great Porter hives, it having been occupied after it was the home of Zerubbabel Rea, 1715, 1739, by Benjamin[5] Porter, his sons Gen. Moses,[6] and Zerrubabel.[6]) He died in Cambridge, April 14, 1822, unmarried. I copy from the History of Danvers. "General Moses Porter, was one of the bravest and best of the officers in the revolutionary army; distinguished himself at Bunker Hill; was under Washington through the war; wounded after the battle of Brandywine, in the fight on the banks of the Delaware; was in the service many years on the western frontier, and superintended the line of surveys for fortifications along the coasts of Maine and Mass. He was actively engaged in the war of 1812, at various places, being at the taking of Fort George, and commanding at Niagara, where he held the rank of brigadier general. In winter of 1813, he accomplished a march from Niagara to New Orleans, in five months, through a trackless wilderness, and accompanied Wilkinson's expedition against Montreal, in 1814, and was stationed at Norfolk, until the close of the war; all his life in the service of country; longer than any officer of his grade, and won the confidence and admiration of all as an able, courageous soldier, and a high disciplinarian."

Zacheus[6] Porter, of James[5] Porter, b. Oct. 25, 1780, in Peterboro, N. H. "His youth passed in Peterboro, N. H., where his father lived; removed to Belfast, Me., about 1813; lawyer; partner with Hon. John Wilson; died Nov. 9, 1824. Although the professional career of Mr. Porter was comparatively short, yet it was long enough to establish his character as a sound and successful lawyer. He was endowed with an active mind, a great share of good sense, was untiring in business, and faithfully devoted to the interests of his clients; scrupulously honest and exact in his dealings, he enjoyed an unusual share of the public confidence; but the laborious duties of his profession early broke down a constitution already impaired by disease when he came here. He died in the midst of business, highly esteemed for his many social, amiable and domestic virtues, and surrounded by every blessing but health to render life desirable." (Williamson's History of Belfast, Me.) Married Rachel, dau. of Samuel and Susan (Curtis) Cunningham, of Peterboro, N. H., Oct. 4, 1811; she born May 10, 1788; died June 16, 1861. Children:

William D.[7] Porter, of William L.[6] Porter, b. Charleston, S. C., Nov. 24, 1810; resides there; a most worthy, honorable gentleman; distinguished as a lawyer and statesman; "grad. at the College of Charleston, in 1829; taught school and studied law; admitted to the bar in 1833, and commenced the practice of law in Charleston; in 1840, was elected to the house of representatives, of South Carolina, serving eight years; in 1844, elected corporation attorney, of Charleston, retaining that office for twenty years; elected to the state senate, and in 1857, elected president of that body, serving as such till the establishment of the provisional government, in 1866. After the war the state constitution was revised, giving the election of Governor and Lieut. Governor (which had always been in the legislature,) to the people. At the first popular election, Mr. Porter was elected Lieut. Governor without opposition, restoring him to his position of president of the senate, where he continued until the reconstruction measures officially decapitated him. In 1871, the grievances of misrule brought into being the tax payers convention, as it was called, in South Carolina. It was an assemblage of property holders and tax payers, embracing the best men in the state. Mr. Porter was elected president of the convention, which had two sessions, one in 1871, the other in 1874. The latter session sent a delegation of twenty-five to Washington, of which Mr. Porter was chairman, to seek an inquiry and investigation into the affairs in South Carolina, and bring the condition of things there before the country, and enlist the sympathy and moral support of all parties in favor of intelligence, education, property and culture. Mr. Porter was a presidential (Peirce) elector in 1852; chairman of South Carolina delegation to democratic convention which nominated Horace Greely, in 1872. He has recently been appointed by Gov. Wade Hampton, master in equity in the courts of South Carolina, an office embracing large legal and equitable jurisdiction. He married in 1839, Emma, second daughter of Capt. Nathaniel Haraden, of the U. S. Navy, by whom he has had seven children—two of his sons having served in the confederate army." Children:

Dea. William[8] Porter, of Col. Paul[7] Porter, b. in Wenham, Dec. 24; died there Aug. 13, 1878.

"Behold therefore, I will gather thee unto thy fathers, and thou shalt be gathered into thy grave in peace."

At an early hour Tuesday morning, Aug. 13th, after a long and painful illness, Dea. William Porter passed peacefully away, lacking but five months of having completed seventy years.

His funeral took place at his late residence, on Thursday last; the services at the house and at the grave being conducted by Rev. Will C. Wood, and Rev. A. D. Gorham. The several hymns selected were sung with taste and feeling, by a quartette composed of Mrs. Batchelder, Mrs. Clark, and Messrs. Burbank and Pool. His two sons and daughter who reside in town, and Rev. Isaac F. Porter, of Chicopee, Mass., were all present with their familes; a fourth son, who is in business at Kansas City, could not reach here in season. Besides the immediate family, many other relatives and friends were there to take a last look at one whose presence had been familiar to them from childhood. Flowers skilfully arranged by loving hands were placed upon the casket, and afterwards upon the grave.

The deceased was a native of this town, being a son of Col. Paul Porter, and has spent his days within its borders. Very early in life he interested himself in religious matters, and soon became a member of the Congregational Church, taking an active part in all measures pertaining to the welfare of the church and the advancement of the kingdom of God. During the pastorate of Rev. J. S. Sewall, he was chosen deacon, but was not ordained until the pastorate of Rev. W. C. Wood. This office he held at the time of his death. He never aspired to political honors, therefore contented himself with doing his duty as a citizen.

His loss will be severely felt in the family where he was a kind and loving father; the church which looked to him for counsel and example; and among those whose good fortune it has been to call him friend and neighbor. He has lived a sincere, consistent Christian life, dealing with scrupulous honesty with all men, and shows to us a life of purity and uprightness, well worthy of emulation.—[Salem paper.]

He married 1st, Caroline, daughter of Thomas and Sarah (Knowlton) Perkins, of Topsfield, April 21, 1831; she died May 5, 1833, aged 24. Married 2d, Sally, daughter of Warren and Lydia (Dale) Peabody, Sept. 28, or 25, 1835; she died Sept. 24, 1840, aged 33. Married 3d, Lucretia G.
